

TRENDS

{The most popular months to wed, at Kendall Plantation}

1. October wins for the most popular month, this trend has not changed since we opened our doors in 2011. Typically, not as warm, it's not hunting season yet, and people aren't hyped up about the holidays just yet.
2. May comes in at a close 2nd to October. We don't usually see triple digit temps in May, the flowers are in FULL bloom, it's absolutely stunning at KP in May.
3. June is not far behind, in fact, it's just about tied with May. The wildflowers are amazing, the sun sets later, the trees are bright green, and kids are out of school.
4. April never disappoints us with its gorgeous springtime colors. It could be chilly; it could be in the 80's. Don't let the "April showers bring May flowers" fool you. We are convinced this is not a saying that derived in Texas. April is typically not a rainy month for Texas.
5. November & December come in next as the most sought-after dates. Why not?! Can you remember the last December where it was snowing in Texas and icy roads? Or the last Christmas you walked outside in snow boots, a scarf and hand warmers? Didn't think so. Typically, November and December offer the prettiest weather. Nowhere near hot temps, but not really freezing cold either. Usually it's just right, hovering around a comfortable 60° to 70°.

So there you have it, our most popular months to get married. Keep in mind, the average bride at KP has her venue booked for a little over a year. From time to time, we have brides who book less than 6 months out (oh ya, you can plan a wedding in 6 months easy, ask us how!). And we have brides who book 2 years out, usually after popular dates like a leap year date, or fun numbers like 10/10/20. If you are looking at getting hitched on a holiday weekend, heads up; holiday weekends book up first. New Year's Eve weekend, Memorial Day weekend, Labor Day weekend, Thanksgiving weekend, and any Sunday before a Monday holiday.
